ALLAN G. FARNAZO

Director IV

And concurrent Officer In-Charge

Office of the Schools Division Superintendent

DepEd Division of Davao del Norte

Brgy. Mankilam, Tagum City

Dear Director Farnazo:

Good day!

The Covid19 pandemic has undoubtedly challenged the way we deliver basic quality education. It has accelerated digital transformation globally but it also yielded challenges, particularly, in contactless physical interaction between teachers and students. To address the shift in educational needs, teachers are going beyond usual learning and teaching modalities, which the Bank recognized is also affecting how values or character formation are incorporated in the curriculum.

As City Savings Bank continues its effort to promote growth and capability building for our public educators, the Bank is organizing a 3-day webinar series on National Economic Development and Values Formation for Principals on December 7-9, 2022 (10:00am-12:00nn). The details of this program are attached in this letter.

This webinar will be facilitated by our partners from the University of Asia and the Pacific, one of the leading institutions of higher learning in the Philippines that have pioneered programs for educators in values formation. Dr. Bernardo M. Villegas, a prominent economist and one of the initiators of values education courses will focus on the key concepts in economics, Philippine constitution and its impact to values and principles. Meanwhile, Dr. Antonio N. Torralba, an educator with tremendous experience in basic education will help the DepEd participants deliver and implement a program that will improve their ability to foster the appropriate virtues and values in their respective schools, even with the existing constraint of online learning.

In line with this, we would like to request your office to select 20 flagship schools in the Division, with 2 representatives per school - a Principal and either the Assistant Principal, Guidance Counselor, or select Department Chair, to attend the session and yield a tandem of champions to effectively carry out a Character Education Program for the school.

You may send the list of attendees with their designation, school, and email address to Mr. Amor Querido C. Pavon, Regional Business Head – Southern Mindanao via this email amor.pavon@citysavings.com.ph on or before December 2. You can reach me as well at 0917-523-3689 should you have further clarifications on this program.

We look forward to your positive response on this initiative as we work together in propagating values and virtues that will contribute to our country's economic development.

Sincerely,

Amor Querido C. Pavon

National Economic Development and Values Formation for Principals

I. Introduction and Program Overview

Almost all sectors of society are veering towards contactless transactions: Banks, malls, restaurants, sports, utilities, public services, telemedicine, and public entertainment. Even after the pandemic is put under reasonable control, it is expected that many features of the contactless culture will remain. For the education sector, blended learning is here to stay. Even when face to face classroom instruction will be allowed, both teachers and students will still want to continue to have recourse to online methods of instruction. The saving in transport time and the comfort of staying at home while attending or giving classes will convince most school communities to still depend on online learning for part of the delivery of the curriculum.

There is the worry, however, that the downside of a contactless world is the erosion or deterioration of human relations. Face to face contact is necessary for the cultivation of soft skills for which Filipinos are well known all over the world. There must be some way we can make sure that as we enter a more digitalised world, we do not lose this distinct advantage of Filipinos, not only for its value to the employability of our workforce here and abroad but also primarily to retain the social virtues for us to be on top of any measure of Gross National Happiness.

The need to strengthen Filipino values requires a home-school collaboration, a synergy and partnership between the teachers and parents in the character and values formation of the students. This initiative supports the campaign of #WAGI (Wastong Asal at Gawí, Isabuhay) that focuses on the long and delicate process of “pagsasabuhay” (living) “wastong asal” (right behavior) and “gawí” (human virtues). This is reflective of Good Manners and Right Conduct, with which Congress has replaced Values Education.

This program focuses on the importance and the role that school authorities play in exerting every effort to involve the parents of their pupils in the challenging task of values and virtues formation. Values are positive traits or characteristics every society wants to imbue in its members, such as respect for the dignity of every individual, caring attitude towards nature, respect for life and the institution of marriage, willingness to contribute to the common good, the promotion of the welfare of children, the aged and the handicapped, etc. Virtues are habits of the individual which make it easy for him or her to do what is good and right according to absolute moral principles that one can arrive at through the natural light of reason and further reinforced by religious beliefs. Values can be fostered by constant exhortation, reminder, and illustration in the curriculum and content of teaching materials. Virtues, on the other hand, are mainly “caught” rather than taught. Virtues will flourish among children and the youth only if they see the personal examples of virtues incarnated in the lives of their parents and teachers.

A close examination of the economic history of the Philippines over the last fifty years will also be discussed. This is to provide context of the development of the whole East Asian region and how values and virtues directly related to the goal of Philippine society to attain economic development that is inclusive and sustainable is tied together.

II. Program Objectives

At the end of the program, participants shall be able to:

1. Deepen their knowledge of the Philippine Economic Development and how it impacts the National Education Sector
2. Understand how schools can help develop values and virtues that will contribute and support the economic development
3. Go through a school-based decision-making process to blend values (appreciation of moral norms) and virtues (practice of moral norms) in the school community: students, teachers, and parents.
